ARRANGE FOR THE CONVENTION

Thursday night next at 8 o'clock.

The State Committee, with the advice of the Executive Committee, will decide on the fime and place of meeting, basis of representation, and other important de-tails connected with the convention. Popular comion seems to favor a late con-vention—that is, that the body meet about vention—that is, that the body meet about the usual time, and it is regarded as prac-tically certain that the basis of represen-tation will be reduced from one delegate to every 100 Democratic voters to one delegate to every 200. This would give a convention of about 800 instead of more than 1,600, as has been the case the last two times.

WHERE TO MEET.

WHERE TO MEET.

Bichmond, Norfolk, and Roanoke are mentioned as the place for holding the convention, and a movement is already on foot here to raise a guarantee fund to induce the committee to select Richmond. Touching this point the correspondent of the Petersburg Index-Appeal writes from Richmond:

"It would not surprise politicians who have studied the situation to see a pretty little fight in the State Committee next Thursday when it comes to selecting the place for holding the convention. There are many reasons why Tyler will wish it to be held in Hoanoke. That city is near the hot-bad of Tylerism and boomers of the Lieutenant-Governor could be hauled to the Magic City by train-louds. Besides, it would be easier to convince the delegates of the claims of Southwestern Virginia to the first place on the ticket with the convention in that part of the State. Presumably the O'Ferrallites would preferenther Richmond or Norfolk, and their full strength will probably finally go to one or the other of those cities as against Roanoke."

Hon. Basil B. Gordon is chairman of both committees and Captain Ham Shep-perd the secretary. The following are the members of the Executive Committee: First District, W. A. Jones, Warsaw. The City Democratic Committee will meet soon after the State and Executive committees have completed their work for the purpose of deciding as to the time and manner of electing delegates to the State convention and of nominating candidates for the Legislature. The reapportionment gives Richmond five delegates—an increase of one—and Richmond and Henrico also elect, two senators.

OPPOSITION IN THE COUNTY.

Chairman Mitchell Thinks the Negroe Will Make Nominations. The following address fully explains itself and sounds a note of warning that should be heeded by the county Demo-

Especially Those Who Voted in the Last Primary:
We are reliably informed that the Republican party, aided by some treachers, propose in certain districts to oppose the regular nominees of our recent primary (supervisors, constables, etc.), and whatever may have been our difference then, we have now only one duty to perform and that is to exert every energy and winfluence ou the 25th of May to see that every primary voter is brought to the polls to aid in rebuking every bolter who desires to disrupt the party who has in such a short while improved every condition of the county. Every man must organize himself into a sentinel and watch and work erfor the success of every nominee, great and small, who submitted their claims and who were selected, and to frown upon every dishoporable renegade who tries to destroy the fabric of an honest, clean administration.

The corpse referred to was so decomposed and disfigured as to make identification impossible and there were no letters or papers in the clothing of the deceased. On the little appendage to his shirt-bosom were the letters "J. M. Probably Came from Newport News.

The police are now certain that Fannie Coenty discovered in an East-End boarding-house, is not the missing Rebecca Clements who disappeared from her home, in Amberst, some time ago. It was white searching for the latter that Mr. Hall came across Fannie, who told him that Roanoke was her home. Inquiry developed the fact that she did not reside there. A few days ago Officer Hall received a letter from R. H. Owens, of Newport News, stating that his daughter Fannie had left her home some weeks ago to come to Richmond. Mr. Owens further said that he knew the man, O. W. Mahone, whom Fannie claimed as her half-brother. His references to Mahone in the communication were by no means complimentary.

Upon receipt of this communication Officer Hall wrote back to Mr. Owens giving a description of Fannie, and advising him to come to Richmond to look after her. No response to this letter has as yet been received.

The Norfolk Landmark, referring to Colonel John B. Cary's address one the occasion of the unveiling of the James Barron Hope monument, says:

"Colonel Cary's address, when seen in cold type, does not do him justice. It is impressible to hear the eloquence, the feeling, the earnestness with which this lator of love was performed. The manuscript from which he spoke was propared in a hurry and his interjected remarks, impossible to be obtained, were like the others, rich in thought and beautiful in expression.

"He was closely listened to, and his burning eloquence swayed all those who heard as with one accord. When he had concluded the ceremones were at an end and the assemblage took themselves homeward, leaving behind a life-long token of the esteem in which Captain James Barron Hope was held by friends."
